HORACE THE WISE Book L Ode 5

O. Pyrrha, tell me who's the guy, The boob, the simp you've got a date with? (Well I recall the time 'twas I You'd tête-a-tête with!)

I saw him in the barber's chair-His face perfumed with scented water, And oil upon his shoes and hair-Dressed for the slaughter!

I do not know this kid whose goat You've got by saying you adore him. But, take it from this famous pote, I'm sorry for him!

The Fates deal kindly with the lad! This crush of his-how he will rue it! He'll call you everything that's bad-Ain't I been through it?

"Must I paint the picture," demanded Senator J. Ham Lewis, "of the rich youth scated at a table with fine champagne and a lady, and a young man fills the slipper of his paramour and lifts it to his lips, while outside the laboring man finds it impossible to have his glass of beer?" That, Senator, is a Picture No Artist Can Paint. And, answering your query: No, don't paint the picture; put the pathetic incident into a popular ballad.

"Persicos odi" is the way Horace, the J. Ham Lewis of his day,

Another thing, Senator: How do you think the lady you mention would like to have the young man drink from that other woman's 4

CONSECRATION

Thou wouldst not have the love I offered thee, Such virgin-bladed love, Damascus-fine, As asked but leave to worship at what shrine It raised: for thou didst then believe nor plea Nor love, and so with sunless heart could see My life-blood, all athirst like vintage wine, Outpoured as water, and my soul supine Choke up the dust that kissed thy feet. To me (Full half in pity for such agony) Thou then didst give thy friendship-so may I To-day give all myself, while thou needst love No thing but which is worthy all of thee; So I through pain have won to thee more nigh Than ever I had dared to hope in love!

This conservation thing is a boomerang. We, for one, never touch a piece of wheat bread from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. But this corn bread that our frugal board now groans under is great stuff, and we can't get enough of it.

Mr. Arch Klumph, ex-president of the International Rotary, announced, athaletically, the first day of the Atlanta convention, that "the Birmingham Band will now play 'Rule Britannica.'"

The Reserve Regiment, New York Engineers

We were talking of the Army, and a thousand things we said; We glorified the living and we deified the dead; Oh! 'twas Cavalry and Infantry, the boy behind the gun, Not emitting the Artillery that makes the German run-When a voice behind us spoke to us and said, "Sirs, it appears You've forgotten, you've forgotten, the New York Engineers."

Forget you, lads! God bless you! You were first at duty's call. We hope you'll all come back again; if not, in Glory's Hall Where Heroes of the Ages drink their wine and swig their beers There's a glorious welcome waiting for the New York Engineers

"This is no place for radical ideas!" said Judge Mayer. "Did any of your ancestors sign the Declaration of Independence?" asked Mr. Berkman. "We are not going to go into ancestral history just yet," Judge Mayer said. Ain't that, as Josh Devore used to say, a helovacomeback?

It may be treason, but it is our opinion that, in the repartee singles, Mr. Alexander Berkman frequently passed Judge Mayer

Anti-Tammany Democrats Launch Boom for Mitchel

Delegates from All Assembly Districts to City Convention Cheer Indorsement of Mayor as New Organization's First Batch of Fifty Girls Question of Representation Candidate for Re-Election

The new City Democracy—an organization of prominent Democrats bent upon the destruction of Tammany Hall—started vigorous work for the Fusion cause in the coming municipal campaign last night, at a "city convention" held in the Grand Central Palsce. Several hundred delegates from all the Assembly districts throughout the city cheered wildly when resolutions were adopted declaring for Mayor Mitchel as the organization's candidate for recilection and empowering the executive committee to take "all proper and necessary steps to have his name placed on the official ballot."

Arraignment of Tammany
The declaration, a severe arraignment of the Tammany organization, follows:

"That public service is to combine with all like-minded people and organizations in recognizing and supporting those public servants who have esteemed the honor and trust of their offices as an organization will. The machinery of party government must find an honorable and dignified way in which they can express their falth and register their will. The machinery of party government set up and run by Tammany Hall for party advantage, and not for the public good, is designed to stifle free party discussion and opinion and is utterly destitute of a real purpose to serve the city or the country.
